Trip Overview

Kanchenjunga Trek South to North is an 18-day adventure in Nepal's Kanchenjunga Conservation Area, which is home to the world's third-highest Himalayas. Covering an area of 2035 km<sup>2</sup>, the trek offers a unique opportunity to witness rare wildlife, such as snow leopards, red pandas, and musk deer, and experience the wilderness like never before. The trek features breathtaking views of towering peaks, including Kanchenjunga, Makalu, and Lhotse, as it winds through diverse landscapes of lush forests, alpine meadows, and glacial valleys. The trek also provides an opportunity to immerse oneself in the rich culture of the local communities, with visits to traditional villages and monasteries along the way. With experienced guides leading the way, the Kanchenjunga Trek South to North promises an extraordinary journey through one of the most pristine and awe-inspiring regions of the Himalayas.

During the Kanchenjunga Trek from south to north, hikers may encounter the picturesque village of Ghunsa, nestled in a valley surrounded by snow-capped mountains. Here, they can witness the traditional lifestyle of the local Sherpa community, visit monasteries adorned with colorful prayer flags, and even participate in cultural ceremonies and festivals. Additionally, as they make their way through the remote and untouched landscapes, hikers may stumble upon hidden alpine lakes sparkling under the sun, providing a stunning backdrop for photography enthusiasts and nature lovers alike. Explorers on the Kanchenjunga Trek may also have the opportunity to spot unique Himalayan wildlife, such as the elusive snow leopard or endangered red panda, adding an element of excitement to their journey.

Apart from experiencing the natural beauty of the region, hikers can indulge in delicious local cuisine made from fresh ingredients sourced from nearby farms and forests. As part of their trekking experience, adventurers can immerse themselves in local Sherpa culture by learning traditional crafts like carpet weaving or participating in homestay programs that allow them to live with a Sherpa family and gain insight into their daily lives and customs. Moreover, the trek offers breathtaking views of some of the world's highest peaks, including Mount Everest and Kangchenjunga itself, a sight that few are lucky enough to witness in person.
