Trip Overview

Muldai Poon Hill and Mohare Trek is a lesser-known trekking route in Nepal's Annapurna region, featuring three viewpoints offering stunning panoramic views of the Annapurna and Dhaulagiri mountain ranges. The trek starts from Nayapul or Hile and leads to the famous Poon Hill viewpoint, which offers breathtaking sunrise views over snow-capped peaks. The Muldai Viewpoint offers a serene and less crowded spot for sunrise and sunset views. Mohare Danda, part of the "Community Lodge Trek" initiative, offers magnificent views of the Annapurna and Dhaulagiri ranges. The trek also offers a unique cultural experience with the Gurung and Magar communities' culture and lifestyle. The trek typically takes 7 to 10 days to complete, depending on the itinerary and pace. The best seasons for the Muldai, Poon Hill, and Mohare Trek are spring (March to May) and autumn (September to November), when the weather is pleasant and the skies are clear. It is a moderate trek suitable for trekkers with a reasonable level of fitness.

The Poon Hill Trek is a popular Nepali moderate trek that offers stunning mountain views, beautiful villages, and dense forests. Starting from Nayapul, it takes 5–11 days. Muldai viewpoint offers stunning views of the Annapurna range, while the Mohare Danda trek offers stunning views of the Dhaulagiri and Annapurna ranges. The best time to go is during the spring months of March and April and the fall months of October and November, with dry and warm weather, clear skies, and breathtaking mountain views. During the trek, trekkers can also experience the unique culture and hospitality of the local Gurung and Magar communities. The trail passes through traditional villages like Ghandruk and Ghorepani, allowing visitors to immerse themselves in the rich cultural heritage of the region.
