Trip Overview

The Dhaulagiri Circuit Trail in Nepal offers a unique and challenging journey for experienced trekkers seeking a less crowded, off-the-beaten-path experience. The trail begins in Beni, a town near Pokhara, and follows the Myagdi River Valley. The trek takes you through various terrains, including lush green woods, rocky terrain, glaciers, and snow-covered passes. The "Hidden Valley" is a highlight, offering a sense of being far away from civilization. The trek involves crossing high passes, such as the French Pass and Dhampus Pass, which can be physically demanding and require good acclimatization and trekking experience. The trek typically takes 15 to 21 days, with extended periods of camping and basic teahouse accommodations. The best time to trek is during the spring and autumn seasons when the weather is stable and the skies are clear. Proper gear, acclimatization, and physical preparation are crucial for a safe and enjoyable experience. The Dhaulagiri Circuit Trek is suitable for experienced trekkers who are prepared for the physical and logistical challenges it presents.

The Dhaulagiri Circuit Trek (14 days) is a challenging, classic adventure in Nepal, covering 120 km from the Kaligandaki River west to the Bheri. The trek includes crossing cultivated fields, forests, and villages with ethnic groups like Gurung, Chettri, and Magar. The journey leads to the Italian Base Camp, where you can enjoy stunning views of Dhaulagiri I, II, III, IV, and V. Along the way, you may encounter semi-wild yak herds, mountain sheep, snow leopards, the Kali Gandaki River, and the world's deepest gorge. The hidden snow valley after crossing French Pass offers a heavenly view of the white world. The trek ends in Marpha, a popular city in the Mustang district.

Trip Itinerary

Day 1 Fly Kathmandu to Pokhara (822m), drive to trailhead (1110m)

 7 Hrs    Breakfast, Lunch & Dinner    Tea House    Plane & Car    1110 m

This morning we take a flight west to Pokhara, Nepal's second largest town (820m) and make our way to our first night's camp. On arrival we are greeted with sights of the entire Annapurna Range. We drive through pitch road until Beni and then off road after that. We make our way to Darbang (1110m) for the night; today's journey takes approx. 6-7 hours.

Day 2 Trek To Dharapani (1200m)

It is initially an easy walk as we follow the valley upstream but then we take a steeper route in the afternoon from the village of Phedi. The trail winds through conifer forests and then levels out as we head in to Dharapani. At this busy Magar village time can be taken to explore while camp is set in the schoolyard on the far side of the town. Dhaulagiri dominates to the northeast, while the Gurga Himal is to the northwest. MEALS: Breakfast, Lunch and Dinner

Day 3 Trek to Muri (1800m)

Again the trail climbs steeply to the villages of Muri. Continue your trek to Sibang and Mattim. From here you continue up an incline to the snout of the ridge, descend to the Gatti Khola and reach Phalai Gaon (1810meters). The huge rock parapets of Tsaarabong Peak (6395m) are to our west and the huge peaks of Dhaulagiri II (7751m), Dhaulagiri III (7715m) and Dhaulagiri V (7618m) fill the western sky. ### Day 9 Trek To Dhaulagiri Base Camp (4550m)

 4 Hrs    Breakfast, Lunch & Dinner    Camping    Walking    4550 m

A very solid day of walking as we trek across the glacier and up towards the pass. The day commences with a gentle Walk across lateral moraine to the head of the Myagdi Khola and then on to the Chonbarban Glacier. As we round the bend of the valley, Tukucho Peak West is revealed for the first time. Our camp is spectacularly situated at the end of the glacier with views of Dhaulagiri I, II, III, V, Tukucho Peaks and the imposing icefall that cascades from the north east col of Dhaulagiri.

Day 10 Trek To Hidden Valley (4860m) via French Pass (5360m)

 9 Hrs    Breakfast, Lunch & Dinner    Camping    Walking    5360 m

Our route leads off the glacier and ascends rocky scree to the pass. French pass is named after a French reconnaissance expedition in the 1950s which set out to climb an 8,000 metre peak. Dhaulagiri was chosen but found to be too difficult. Maurice Herzog and his team then attempted Annapurna I. Being the first to reach the summit of an 8,000m peak they achieved international acclaim. It was not without a high price though, as retold by Herzog in his book Annapurna I. As we approach the pass the terrain becomes steeper and it may be necessary to fix ropes for a small section, (approx 100m) depending on snow conditions. It will take at least half a day across undulating terrain to reach the pass from the Base Camp. As we reach our goal the mountains surround us; Sita Chuchura and Tukucho Peak West flank us, Dhaulagiri I is behind, and Mukut Himal and Tashi Kang are to the north. As we descend into Hidden Valley the landscape changes to stark, drylands with snowy peaks. There is a true sense of isolation here and it is quite possible we might sight the elusive blue sheep.

Day 11 Trek To Alubari or Yak Kharka (3900m)

 7 Hrs    Breakfast, Lunch & Dinner    Tea House    Walking    3900 m

Another long day, depending on conditions, to our camp just below Thapa (or Dhampus) Pass (5250m). It is a short climb to the pass (approx. an hour), followed by a long traverse and descent upon loose scree to our camp amongst vegetation once again. Now on the other side of the pass, we can enjoy frontal views of the Nilgiri range and the broad valley of the Kali Gandaki.

Day 12 Trek To Jomsom (2670m) via Marpha (2667m)

 5 Hrs     Breakfast, Lunch & Dinner     Tea House     Walking     2670 m

Descending towards the Kali Gandaki Valley, the trail through forest is well defined and makes a pleasant change from the high alpine terrain we have been in for the last few days. We descend steeply all day and enter the main trail for trekkers of the Annapurna Circuit. Marpha is a substantial town of the valley and a good stopping off point for trekkers/pilgrims and traders between Muktinath/Jomoson and Pokhara. The paved, winding footway and closely built terrace-like housing makes the town very picturesque. Many apples are grown in the area, there is a good chance we may have apple pie tonight! Continuing north we reach Jomsom and our lodge for the night. MEALS: Breakfast, Lunch and Dinner
