Trip Overview

Pathibhara Devi Temple, located in the Taplejung district of Nepal, is a popular pilgrimage site with stunning views of Mount Everest, Lhotse, Cho Oyu, Makalu, and the Kanchenjunga Himalayas range. The temple is sacred to Limbus and is believed to be a place of power and purity. It is believed to fulfill the wishes of pilgrims through a miracle and is considered a Shakti Peeth, meaning a place where Devi Sati's body part fell. The temple is accessible from Kathmandu, the Suketar airstrip, or Phedi, and is considered a Shakti Peeth, where parts of Goddess Sati fell while Lord Shiva carried her dead body. Worshipers from various parts of Nepal and India flock to the temple during special occasions, believing that a pilgrimage to Pathibhara ensures the fulfillment of their desires. Pathibhara Devi Temple is a significant Hindu pilgrimage site in Nepal's Taplejung district, dedicated to Goddess Pathibhara. The tour offers a spiritual and culturally enriching experience. The journey starts in Kathmandu, the capital city, and can be taken by domestic flight to Suketar Airport or a combination of flight and road transport.

The trek takes about 4–5 hours and passes through lush forests, picturesque landscapes, and traditional villages. The temple offers serene atmospheres, prayers, and rituals with panoramic views of the Himalayan mountains, including Kanchenjunga. After a spiritually uplifting time, the trek begins back to the base. Returning to Kathmandu, the journey can be completed by either taking a return flight or combining road and air travel. Returning to Kathmandu, travelers have the option of taking a return flight directly from the nearest airport or opting for a combination of road and air travel. This allows them to enjoy the scenic beauty of the region once again, while also providing a convenient and efficient way to reach their destination.

Trip Itinerary
