Trip Overview

Tengkoma Peak is a 6215-meter-tall non-technical peak located just before the Kanchenjunga northern base in Nepal. The Kanchenjunga base camp trek takes 14 days to reach the peak, offering stunning views of Kanchenjunga, Dhormo, Kirat Chuli, Pathibhara, Ramthang Chang, Gimnigela Chuli, Kumbhakarna, Everest, Makalu, and parts of Tibet. The alpine-style peak climbing trip with Mount Adventure Holidays includes a flight to Bhadrapur airport, a Jeep drive to Taplejung, and a trek through the Kanchenjunga conservation area, rich in biodiversity and landscapes. The trip includes storage of climbing gear in the Lhonak village, ensuring a competitive advantage over cost and quality. Tengkoma Peak is a suitable peak for acclimatization during the Kanchenjunga expedition, the Sherpeni Col trek, or the Great Himalayan Trail. It can also be combined with the Kanchenjunga Circuit Trek for an additional 8 days. Climbing the Himalayas offers a package of Tengkoma Peak climbing, including logistics, transportation, accommodation, and a professional mountain guide, at a reasonable price.

The best seasons for trekking and climbing in the Kanchenjunga region are pre-monsoon (spring) and post-monsoon (autumn). During these seasons, the weather is relatively stable and visibility is better, allowing climbers to enjoy the breathtaking views of the surrounding mountains. Additionally, it is important to note that climbers should be physically fit and have prior experience in high-altitude trekking before attempting to climb Kanchenjunga.
